Ariel Duncan

Ariel has been modeling my clothing brand Colors Are Beautiful for 4 years. I showcased my collections in Fashion Shows where she modeled for me. They are Walk Fashion Show, Free Spirit and Dressed and Blessed Daughters Fashion Show. Her catwalk is fierce and flawless on the runway. I am so glad that she hit me up through a text wanting to model my latest designs. I am so glad that I got the chance to work with her.

To be or not to be. To live or not to live.

There's always another option, something else you could be doing right now. Something better, something that you enjoy more.

Because that's what life's about!

To live, you only have so much time & yes, it's important to work hard and grow on a daily basis.

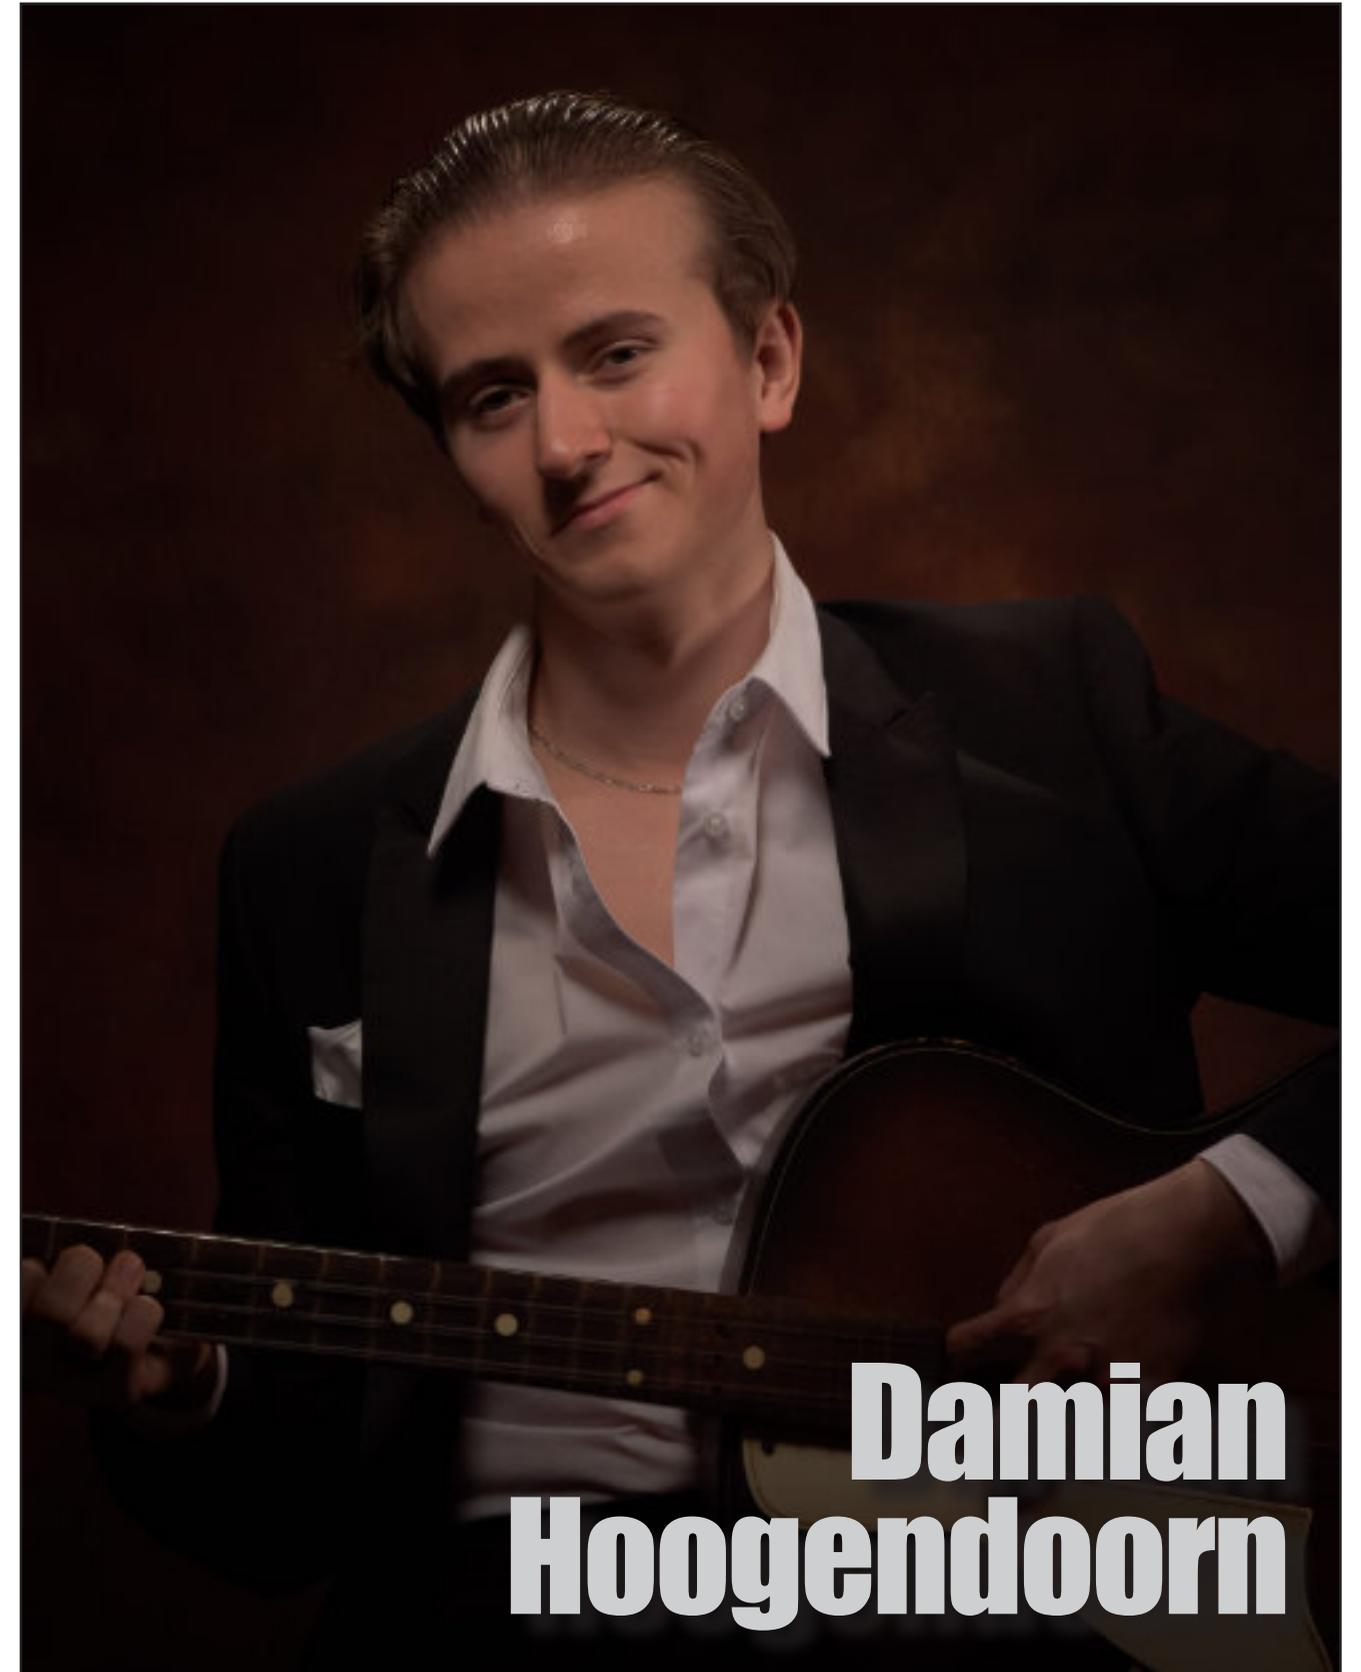

But to enjoy life is the best of all.

As a model, entrepreneur, actor and many more I dedicate my life to bringing value to others.

To be present on social media, have my podcast & blog + all other actions requires me to work hard, therefore, to live more.

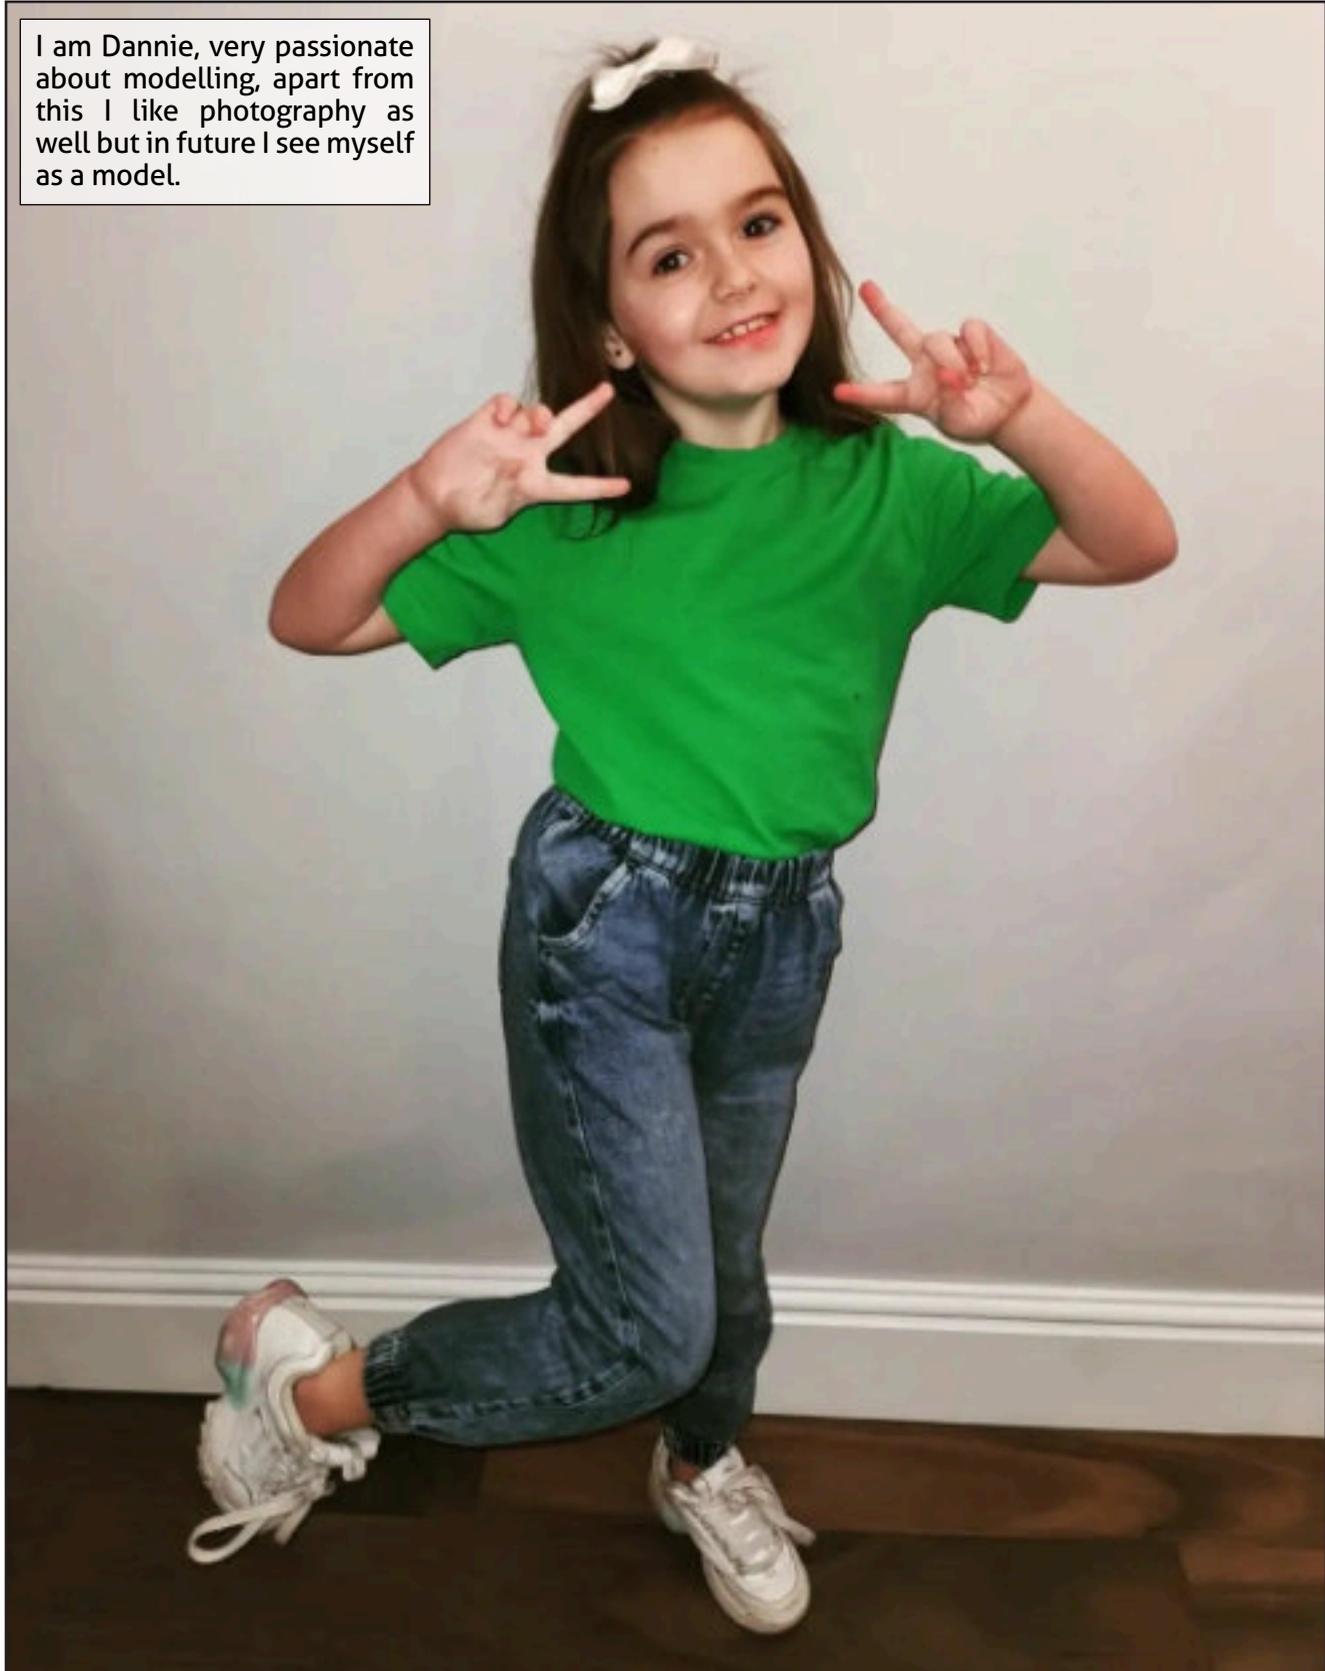

I'm the next Tony Robbins & one day, you're all going to know me.

Hi, my name is Gracelyn and I just turned 9.

I love to dance, it's my passion, rock and outlet in life.

I started dance at 3yrs old with pre dance.

I also enjoyed gymnastics from the early age of 2 1/2 until I was 5.

At age 4 I received an invitation to join the competitive dance team at Tk Danceworx in my home town and have never looked back!

My favorite style of dance is acrobatics with a contortion and tumbling flare!

I have multiple accomplishments in dance, won multiple awards, had a small part in a music video, recently became a brand ambassador for Limelight Teamwear, won scholarships including trips to New York City, Orlando Florida and Blue Mountain Ontario to name a few.

I love to dream BIG! and will be on Broadway one day!

Janae Robinson

My name is Janae Robinson. I'm a model/dancer and choreographer from Phoenix Arizona. I study at JuiceBox Dance Academy and am very proud to be entering my second year of internship with them as a teacher aid. I love working with little ones, it reminds me to have the patience I saw my parents and family have with me when I was little. I started studying dance at the age of 5 with ballet. I've always been told I should model due to my features. I started modeling at the beginning of the pandemic as a way to battle depression from being separated from my peers. With the support and love of my entire family I have begun to realize my dreams at an early age. I entered a choreography competition for high school level students this year and to my surprise won first place with AZDEO. My families continued love and support keeps me pushing towards those goals full steam.

Layla Fendley

Layla is 12 years old and a 7th grader in Arizona. She is passionate about advocating for those that are neurodivergent like herself and the underrepresented in her community. She is a proud tribal member of the Manzanita band of the Kumeyaay Nation. She loves science and animals, and hopes to one day get a pet frog or axolotl.

Layla started modeling during the pandemic to stay active. Her aunt and uncle own a media company @partakemedia and welcomed the opportunity to take her around and teach her about posing cameras and lighting. Since she started a little over a year ago Layla has been published in more than 30 magazines.

Layla is a constant creative. She is always looking for new avenues to expand her creative energy. She is a gifted sketch artist and crocheter and an inventive writer. Layla also wanted to learn violin in 2021 and her hard work and diligence quickly paid off as she was selected for the Greater Phoenix Honor Band in 2022.

Layla has been dancing for 7 years. She is trained in ballet, hip hop, jazz, contemporary and her favorite tap. She is part of the praise dancers at her church and in the children's choir. Layla has been dancing with the JUICEBOX dance academy since 2018 and was awarded Dancer of the year for the 2020 season. Layla is currently in her first competition season and has already received gold, platinum and star platinum awards. At the Act1 talent competition (2/2022) Layla was also awarded 1st place for teen photogenic. She looks forward to a fun and successful rest of the competition season with her team.
